MARCH FOR SCIENCE CINCINNATI 2018

We're raising money for the March for Science Cincinnati 2018! April 14, 2018 Sawyer Point Cincinnati, Ohio Last year, over 10,000 attended the March for Science Cincinnati at Fountain Square. Encouraged by the support of the community, we formed a group to continue our efforts throughout the year, including outreach programs for youth science activities through community partnerships. Our primary event this year, will be Saturday April 14, 2018 at Sawyer Point. We are expanding the March for Science Cincinnati to include a science-based festival immediately following the rally & march. Science organizations and advocates will be providing demonstrations and experiments for both children and adults. Our Mission The March For Science Cincinnati is dedicated to raising the awareness of the value and contribution of science in the Greater Cincinnati community. We are committed to championing local scientists, supporting science education, funding for future scientist programs in local schools, and to encouraging citizens to Vote For Science. The March for Science Cincinnati will objectively, apolitically, and unapologetically address any scientific subject including, but not limited to: evolution, climate change, comprehensive sex education, vaccines, reproductive rights, and any evidence-based science advocacy. The March For Science Cincinnati subscribes to the mission of the national March For Science organization: The March for Science champions publicly-funded and publicly-communicated science as a pillar of human freedom and prosperity. We unite as a diverse, nonpartisan group to call for science that upholds the common good and for political leaders and policy makers to enact evidence based policies in the public interest. Money raised will be used to pay for the venue & related event expenses. Unused money will be used to continue the March for Science Cincinnati mission.
